Thought for the Week:

“Every heart sings a song, incomplete, until another heart whispers back. Those who wish to sing always find a song. At the touch of a lover, everyone becomes a poet.” – Plato

“Love is like a beautiful flower which I may not touch, but whose fragrance makes the garden a place of delight just the same.” – Helen Keller

We need your photos for our parish directory! Photography sessions are set for January 18, 19, & 20. This coming week! Please schedule your photography session online now. It's very easy and instructions are available in the bulletin. Remember, you are under no obligation to purchase anything. And just for sitting for your photo, and allowing us to include you in the directory, you will receive a free 8 x 10 and a free directory! If you find all available times are full, or if you have any other issues with scheduling, please contact the office.

Welcome to our 2 new Parish Council members. They are: David Olako and Carole Sumner.

Pope Francis wants every Catholic to advise him - this will help direct the Catholic Church as it moves further into the 21st century. We begin by asking each one of our parishioners to complete an anonymous survey designed to determine how you see the Church. Go to the survey at synodsurvey.org. Please take this survey. If you need help or you do not have a computer, just call the church office. ***

Your donation will assist the bishops, priests and religious in countries such as Haiti, El Salvador and Chile in their work of evangelization, the formation of seminarians and religious, catechesis, and youth ministry. Thank you for your generosity in support of the Church in Latin America.

Pope Francis marked the 625th anniversary of the Faculty of Theology of the John Paul II

Pontifical University in Krakow: In his message addressed to Archbishop Marek Jędraszewski, Grand Chancellor of the Pontifical University of John Paul II, Pope Francis recalled the establishment of the prestigious Faculty that was to become part of Poland's Jagiellonian University.

Pope Francis said he joins his Polish brother in gratitude to God for this tradition of more than six centuries, with its scientific and educational achievements, as well as its spirituality, created by its holy founders, professors, and students.

Remarking on challenges of the present, he invited faculty members not to forget tradition, but to "look with hope to the future and create the future." He recalled the motto of the University, "Go and make disciples" (Mt 28:19), and the document on its mission that states that the faculty's activity consists in scientific reflection on the content of Revelation, using classical and contemporary research methods, and said that "St. John Paul II emphasized the need for such a 'ministry of thought,' through which university circles join in the Church's mission of spreading the message of Christ throughout the world." Pope Francis continued, "faithful to centuries of tradition, read the signs of the times, courageously take up new challenges to effectively bring the truth of the Gospel to contemporary man and the world." He expressed his hope that the University might be a place of formation for new generations of Christians, "not only through scientific study, but also through the social witness of living the faith."

"May it be a community in which the acquisition of knowledge is combined with the promotion of respect for every man, for the love of God who created him, and with care for the formation of hearts, opening them to what is most important, what is enduring and does not pass away," he added.

Young people, the Pope wrote, have their own dreams and goals, and a Catholic university should help them realize them on the basis of truth, goodness, and beauty, which have their source in God. He said that the institution's ministry of thought and truth-seeking is needed by the Church in Poland in today's world and he invited University members to carry out this ministry "with a sense of responsibility in order to be faithful to your mission: go and make disciples!"

Pope Francis concluded his message assuring them of his prayers to entrust the Grand Chancellor, the Rector and the Professors, the students and the staff of the University to God, and invoking the intercession of Queen Saint Hedwig, founder of the Faculty, and of Saint John Paul II. By Linda Bordoni, Vatican News
