Pope Francis will travel to Assisi on Nov. 12 to prepare for his celebration of the World Day of the Poor by spending time listening to and praying with 500 poor people from across Europe, who will be gathered in Assisi.

The pope will have what the Vatican described as “a private meeting” with his special guests Nov. 12 at the Basilica of St. Mary of the Angels in Assisi, said the announcement. The World Day of the Poor - marked each year on the 33rd Sunday of Ordinary Time - will be celebrated on Nov. 14 this year and focuses on a verse, “The poor you will always have with you” (Mk 14:7).

In his message for the 2021 celebration, Pope Francis wrote: “We are called to discover Christ in them (the poor), to lend them our voice in their causes, but also to be their friends, to listen to them, to understand them and to welcome the mysterious wisdom that God wants to communicate to us through them.”

The gathering in Assisi is being coordinated by the Pontifical Council for Promoting New Evangelization and We Are Fratello, a France-based Catholic organization that organizes days of prayer and other meetings for persons living in poverty.

As the Year of Mercy was ending in November 2016, Pope Francis wanted to set one day aside each year to underline everyone’s responsibility “to care for the true riches, which are the poor.” By: Catholic News Service, Vatican City- USCCB website

“Humanity needs new maps to discover the meaning of fraternity, social friendship and the common good,” the pope said Nov. 5 as he opened the library’s new permanent exhibition space and its first exhibit: “Tutti. Humanity on the Way.”

Beginning with an almost 20-foot-long map of the Nile by 17th-century Turkish Ottoman explorer Evliya Çelebi, the exhibit features some of the oldest and most unusual maps in the library’s collection interspersed with new pieces by Pietro Ruffo, a contemporary artist from Rome.

Father Giacomo Cardinali, an official of the library who worked on the exhibit, said it involves a “nongeographical cartography,” in that many of the maps are not just rudimentary - many were never meant to be geographically accurate. “In the course of history, people used the representational scheme of the map not only to describe the Earth objectively,” but also to map their own interior life, ideals and convictions.

“We must not neglect to think and speak of beauty, because the human heart does not need bread alone, it does not need only that which guarantees its immediate survival: It also needs culture, that which touches the soul, which brings the human being closer to his profound dignity,” the pope said. The exhibit, he said, also reflects the fact that culture needs dialogue and encounter to grow. “Cultures get sick when they become self-referential, they lose curiosity and openness to the other. When they exclude instead of integrating,” the pope said. “What advantage do we have in making ourselves guardians of borders, instead of guardians of our brothers and sisters? The question God repeats to us is: ‘Where is your brother?’”
